

New Community School Co-ordinator at Connaught School

On Monday, August 22nd, Sue Deranger joined the staff at Connaught School as the new Community School Co-ordinator.

Sue Deranger is formerly the Director of the Regina Native Women Girls Centre, a group home that cares for troubled adolescent girls.

Mrs. Deranger expressed her interest in the Coordinator's role as stemming from her interest in the concept of the Community School. Also, being the person she is, Sue says that she is not one to sit back when a program like this is happening; she wants to be involved and help to make the idea work. Consequently, Sue has lots of ideas for the Community School program that she will be sharing with the School, the School Council, her associates and with the community.

According to Sue Deranger, the Community School concept is one of the school and the community working together, hand in hand, for the betterment of the children and of the community as a whole.

Welcome to our community and to Connaught School, Sue. We look forward to working with you.

Sue and her family: Husband Peter, and children Axteca (6), Erial (4), and Deneu (2).